Weather Stats from Wednesday's (March 26th) Powerful Extratropical Storm

(submitted by Corrine Frantel)

My Weatherlink showed the highest wind gust was 113 kph (70 mph) at 1905 ADT (7:05 ADT) with the highest 5 minutes of sustained wind being 77 kph at 2010 ADT. That is very impressive and I am almost surprised that the anemometer and wind vane are still working OK and are still attached. The lowest pressure was 981.6 millibars (hectopascals) at 1800 ADT.

Annapolis Royal in Maclean’s Magazine

Annapolis Royal captured the attention of Maclean’s Magazine – Canada’s only national weekly current affairs magazine – for their series on “must see” places in Canada. As the first permanent European settlement in what is now known as Canada, it’s fitting that Annapolis Royal, Nova Scotia is the first location featured in this series. The rich history of our community, the beauty of our locale and, the welcoming warmth of its residents took centre stage for the creation of this article, photo-essay and video. We could not be more proud of the opportunity provided by Maclean’s to invite everyone to our home – come explore your history in Annapolis Royal!

100 POPPIES

To honour the men and women that fought in this war, let's plan to plant 100 red poppies to mark this occasion. The poppy tradition came from WW1 and given that John McCrae author of "Flanders Fields" was a Canadian, it would be a great tribute. Poppies can be planted in early spring and bloom late spring/summer so the timing is fitting. We are asking Town resident who are interested in planting poppies to let administration at Town Hall know how many poppies you planted. Combined our community number may be far greater than 100. Call 532-3145 or email phmc@annapolisroyal.com
