WHAT'S UP ANNAPOLIS?

. S . U . M . M . E . R . T . I . M . E .

Festivals, parades, dancing, music, and all kinds of summer fun are back in season! After two years of cancelled events, scaled down events, or online events, we're all looking forward to gathering, reacquainting with old friends, making new friends and enjoying all that summer in Annapolis Royal has to offer. From National Indigenous People's Day to Natal Day Weekend and lots in between (and some new ones on the horizon - stay tuned!). Celebrations abound this summer.

Tourists, previously thought to be an endangered species, have returned in droves. On my way in to work today I spotted a number of out of province and out of country license plates. And many a camera sporting visitor has been spotted over the last month or so, which is great news for all local attractions and businesses.

If you have an event, activity, or some cool offering, send it to us to be included in the listing of monthly events or the community news and announcements section. You can also purchase (a very affordable) ad in the Town Crier too. The deadline for submissions for the August edition is July 22. Send to kgrear@annapolisroyal.com.

Sunflowers, native to North America, first cultivated by Indigenous Peoples over 4500 years ago!

MAYOR'S MESSAGE

Balancing the Books and Trying to do More After the Budget is Passed....

One of the strategies that Town staff are using to help balance the books at Town Hall and at the same time trying to do more is grant writing and they are very good at it.

The Province of Nova Scotia is supporting the Town's efforts to partner with the Town of Middleton to create a shared Regional Director of Public Works position. The Community Works Program grant will provide $25,000 and both towns would pay 50% of the remaining costs for this position if we are successful in identifying a qualified candidate.

The Police Department was successful in securing a Nova Scotia Youth Ambassador grant of $18,720 that would help the Town in its efforts to establish a better liaison with neighbouring First Nations communities.

As previously reported, the Environment Committee was also successful in its application for the National Cost Sharing Program for Heritage Places (Parks Canada), securing $25,000. Thanks to the work done by Committee Chair John Bottomley, a Flood Risk Assessment report was also completed which represents a $40,000 in kind contribution to the project. Staff have since filed an application for the balance of funding under the federal Flood Risk Infrastructure Investment Program and we are awaiting a decision on that grant.

Staff have also filed a Provincial Capital Assistance Program application for an engineering study aimed at identifying a second water source for the Town and we are waiting for a decision on that grant as well.

Finally, the Federation of Canadian Municipalities has assessed the Town's application for a $335,000 pilot tidal power project at Victoria Beach. The Town of Middleton and private partner Soluna Energy Inc. have agreed to partner on this project. The Town now has until July 14, 2022 to respond to the questions that arose from that assessment.

As at time of writing, staff continues to monitor the air waves for potential sources of funding for the Town wharf.

But Town staff will pause this week to celebrate Canada Day with a lovely program for us all to enjoy! What will you do to celebrate? Will you put out a flag, have a BBQ and invite friends and neighbours, attend the Town events? Whatever you do, enjoy the day!

O'Dell House Museum Photograph Show and Identification

Our call:

Seeking volunteers! The Annapolis Heritage Society needs help with a new project to share its historic photograph collection with the world. Come help us scan these unique images, then arrange and describe the collection to make it more accessible. No experience needed. All training provided. Help us tell our history! Masks and proof of vaccination are required. To learn more, please email: ahs.archival@gmail.com

Our event:

You're invited to a Photograph Show and ID Session! Come enjoy a rare public exhibition of unidentified treasures from the fascinating historic photograph collection at the O'Dell House Museum. We need help solving these beautiful mysteries, so tell us if you recognize a place, person, or object! Drop by the O'Dell House (136 Lower St. George St.), between 2-4pm on either Saturday, July 23rd, or Monday, July 25th. This event is part of the Photo Collection Preservation and Access project made possible in part by Library and Archives Canada's Documentary Heritage Communities Program.

Identity Theft Part 1

Identity theft occurs when someone obtains and uses another individual's personal data in some way that involves theft or deception. Stealing or hijacking the identity of another person provides an effective means for a criminal to commit fraud, impersonation, and other crimes.

By getting this information from you:

- Your name
- Your date of birth
- Your home address
- Your Social Insurance Number (SIN)

Thieves can:

- Access your financial accounts
- Transfer bank balances
- Withdraw cash
- Open new bank accounts
- Apply for loans, credit cards, purchase vehicles, and - in extreme cases - take luxury vacations or sell your home

Who are the Targets?

Everyone is vulnerable, simply because of going about normal, everyday activities.

Thieves' success at stealing your identity depends on their ability to obtain your Information and their knowledge of how to use it illegally.

How Thieves Get Your Information:

- Stealing your wallet
- Stealing personal documents from your vehicle
- Stealing mail out of your mailbox
- Fraudulently redirecting your mail
- Going through trash cans for credit card and loan applications
- Tampering with automated banking machines (ATMs) and point-of-sale terminals
- Compiling information from Internet accessible records
- Searching public records such as newspapers or telephone books
- Buying information from a dishonest employee working for a company that keeps personal/financial information
- Creating fake contests

CLIMATE CHANGE NEWS

Native Plants and Species

“Before European settlement, it was called the Wabanaki Forest, named by the Mi'kmaq of this whole area, which is the land of the dawn where the sun first rises”

Native plants grow and reproduce naturally in the region they originated from. Native plants have created the ecological basis on which all life forms depend. Without these species of flowers, plants, trees, and scrubs, local insects and animals would not survive.

Landscaping with native plants helps combat climate change. From reduced noise and carbon pollution from lawn mower exhaust, plants, especially the long-longevity kind such as maples and oaks, are highly effective in storing greenhouse gas emissions humans produce. Native plants have adapted to their local environments for hundreds of years, growing complex network systems of roots that protect the ground from erosion and using far less water than alien species. Due to native plants already being exposed to the region's elements, they require less maintenance and water.

Unfortunately, landscaping plants native to the Acadian Forest are becoming less prominent in gardens, and more “appealing” or “exotic” plant varieties are taking their place. While the garden may look aesthetically pleasing, replacing your native species and plants from your gardens can harm the area's health, biodiversity, and soil.

Non-native plants are known as alien species. They are not initially from the area, either arriving during the European settlement era, those travelling and bringing plants from different regions, or a plant nursery right down the street. As the world becomes “smaller,” invasive species have a more leisurely ride to their next area of invasion. Alien species can quickly turn into invasive species that will outcompete plants in the area and degrade the remaining natural areas.

The benefits of Native Plants:

- Low maintenance, hardier, and more adaptable than most exotics
- Reduced dependency on pesticides, water, and automated irrigation systems
- Resistant to frost damage, drought, common diseases, and herbivores
- With maturity, will form self-sustaining plant communities
- Produce long root systems to hold soil in place and resist erosion

NATAL DAY WEEKEND

After a two-year hiatus, Natal Day Weekend in Annapolis Royal is back to being what it once was. Throughout the weekend there are many family-friendly events, as well as adult-friendly events planned so that everyone can enjoy. On Friday, we kick things off with a street dance at 6:45pm to celebrate our opening ceremonies, followed by performances from The FOG at 7:00pm and Merrimac at 8:30pm. All these events will be found on St. George Street. On Saturday we begin the day by having the Farmer's Market at 8:00am, located in the market square, and the Christmas in July Craft Show at 9:00am at the Port Royal Legion #21. Saturday afternoon is highlighted by a splash mob at 3:00pm in the market square as well as a glamorous drag show featuring Steph Peaks at 7:30pm. Sunday's events are highlighted by the final day of the historic encampment at Fort Anne, and of course the fireworks at 9:30pm. To round out our weekend celebrations, the Grand Street Parade is scheduled for 1:00pm on Monday. We hope that you can attend as many of our fantastic events as possible and hope you have an amazing time in Annapolis Royal.
